Miss Mildred Collins/

STAT

Dear Miss Collins:

Allen W. Dulles, Director of Central Intelligence, has asked me to inform you in reply to your letter of January 17, 1959 that he regrets he will not have an advance copy of his talk before the forthcoming Women's Forum on National Security by January 23.

He has not yet started the writing of his address, and it may well be that copies will not be available until shortly before January 30. When they are ready, I will of course get in touch with you.

Sincerely,

/S/ S. J. Grogan

Gentlemen:

Now that the smoke and hysteria have cleared, and much time elapsed, will you be good enough to advise as to the amount of money our Hungarian putsch of 1956 cost this nation?

Thanking you, I am

Very respectfully,

IRA D. CARDIFF

Remarks: I question whether there should be any reply to this letter. You note it is apparently a form letter which undoubtedly has been sent to several agencies. Note the difference in typing of the heading and the text. However, if a reply is to be sent, I think it should merely be "This is to acknowledge your letter of January 5. The question you ask is one that does not come within the cognizance of this Agency. I am sorry that the information which you seek is not available."
